

Wayne Jiang is a realist painter based in Northern California. Combining the aesthetic of 17th century Baroque paintings and the composition of modern documentary photography, his works have been described as the contemporary interpretations of Van Eyck, Vermeer, and Hopper. His work has been widely exhibited in museums and galleries such as the Triton Museum, Crocker Museum, Sanchez Art Center, History San José, and Solomon Dubnick Gallery.

While studying painting and illustration at San Jose State University, Wayne had to reluctantly give up oil painting due to health reasons. Because of his love of old master paintings, he developed a unique style of acrylic painting resembling oil paintings of old Dutch master painters. Over the last two decades, Wayne has been perfecting his unique acrylic technique by applying it to a variety of subjects including portrait, landscape, still life, and night scene.
